Jumped from the Old Suspension Bridge and Escaped Unhurted.
Longwood, July 21.—John Burns, a Queensboro, Sherman while intoxicated yesterday, crawled out on the cables of the old suspension bridge which spans the Niagara between Lewiston and Queenston and, risking himself, leaped down to the river below, a distance of over 100 feet. Burns was found floating in the water, half dead, and it is thought he had been killed, but had come to a few moments and soon when he was of his own motion, swam up to the shore. He was then picked up, and was apparently in no way worse for the exciting ordeals he had undergone.

YESTERDAY, July 21.—The Orangemen of Brooklyn, a band of 200, marched afternoon to the intersection of Broadway and Jay Street, to pay their respects to the body of Rev. J. Fulton. The speaker at the service was Rev. Mr. Bent and Premier Morer. He declared he had recently seen George Washington's body in New York, and had intended to go to see it again, and had invited the Orangemen to march with him.
